Workers will go on indefinite strike from 18th April till the three point agenda of the union is met.

1- Effective implementation of cancellation of Peshgi system. Bhatta workers will not pay any Peshgi anymore. It is illegal to collect the Peshgies.

3- All Bhatta be registered at the government and factory act should be imposed on all Bhatta, workers must have a right of pension and social security

Mehmood Butt said we will not tolerate anymore the system that makes the workers bonded. We do not want any more slavery system in Pakistan. We are using our traditional method of peaceful strike and will show to the world that workers united will never be defeated.

Background Notes

April 14, 2006

Peshgi system is Punjabi name of Advances in shape of cash against future labour. This is a routine business in Brick Kiln industry of Pakistan. There are over 1.8 million of workers in this industry. The basis of this system is on exploitation of wages and physical independence of the workers. This advance cash makes the workers once in life a little rich but rest of his life is been spent in paying back this amount. That makes the worker and whole family literary a slave at the Bhattas(brick kiln factory).

Peshgi System had been used by the bosses to pay low wages, more cuts in wages on the name of paying back the advances and moral pressure on the worker. This had been the basis for the slave system at Bhattas for long time. Several social movements in the past has taken up this case but were met with limited successes.

In 1988, the Supreme Court of Pakistan abolished the whole system after a massive campaign by some social organisations. The bosses went against this decision into Federal Shariat Court that this is an unIslamic decision. It took 18 years for the Shariat Court to decide. Finally on 10th October, fortunately, the Islamic court also decided against the bosses and upheld the decision. Over 90 percent of members of legislative bodies and administration and even judiciary are directly or indirectly engaged in this industry. Due to that, although, there is an Bonded Labour Abolition Act, but in the presence of these conditions, this law can not be beneficiary or even practiced.

The bosses did not accept the decision and they had never accepted any rights of the workers as they are paying Peshgies so it is their birth right to exploit the workers. They went into strike in March this year. The strike of the Bhatta bosses failed as there was internal wrangling. The Union had been demanding the implementation of the law but government did not listen.

So there is a lot at stake. The Union has taken a very bold step and today we got very good response by the workers and they are coming to the office to take the posters. The office is one room only with three full time staff that is paid a very meager wages. But over 100 workers are visiting the office on daily basis.

This is a new union just formed in 2004. the first national union of the Bhatta workers. The Union is based on Bhatta workers and are becoming known nationally, Last night most of the private tv channels showed the union leaders speaking in the press conference.
